TEENER...

By Beverly Henderson

Attractive Loretta Bell is a new and welcome face to Helix Camp this year. Her hobbies are like the alphabet. For example, she plays the Accordion, likes Basketball, loves to Cook, she's a swell Dancer and is quite passable at Embroidery. Other interests are reading, swimming and skating.

She likes singing too, but says that she is inclined to go a "little off key" but has a voice good enough to take her into the Congregational Church choir.

Possessor of a warm personality, she has the knack for making new acquaintances feel comfortable. She is five feet, two inches tall, has brown hair and eyes. Daughter of the G. J. Bells, she lives at 7705 Canton Drive.

Campfire Girls' activities take up much of her time but she has hopes of becoming a nurse after she completes high school.

Most people are attracted to Loretta by her keen sense of humor which automatically gives her the ability to take a joke, too.

Principal Thomas Heads Grove 'Feather' Drive

W. Arthur Thomas, principal of the Monterey Heights School has been appointed chairman of the 1952 United Red Feather Fund Campaign in the Lemon Grove area.

Thomas has already been assured of the wholehearted support of the drive by service organizations and many community leaders. It is planned that each group of those participating will assume responsibility for an assigned district.

"We plan to make this a short, intensive campaign," Thomas said, "with a large number of workers sharing the responsibility."

A meeting of civic group representatives will be held next Monday evening to iron out details of the campaign.

Lemon Grove residents who make contributions at their place of employment are urged to indicate "Lemon Grove" as residence when doing so, Thomas said.

The San Diego office hopes to credit residential districts such as Lemon Grove with the contributions that are made outside.

This will be possible, it was explained, only if a large number of Lemon Grove people indicate their place of residence.

A score card will be maintained on the Plaza in San Diego. Lemon Grove should have a prominent spot percentage-wise on that board.

School Enrollment Continues To Grow

Opening day enrollment in the Lemon Grove School District fell somewhat below previous estimates. This was due in part to the change in entrance age of kindergarten pupils.

This week it became apparent that the lower enrollment in the September 15 was also due to the fact that two weeks of school for sixty additional pupils have entered the classrooms here. On the first day of school, 2327 pupils were enrolled. On Monday of this week, there were 2387 children attending classes in the five schools in the district.

Double Services Schedule For Trinity Church

A new fall schedule featuring double Sunday services will get under way Sunday at Rev. John Chandler's Trinity Presbyterian Church.

An early morning service at 9:30 and another at 11:10 are designed to accommodate churchgoers. Church School classes will be held at 9:30 and 10:15.

Suit and Silver To Attract Consumers To Lane's New Store

A 53 piece set of Wm. Rogers table silver, a man's $65 suit, a kid's bicycle and toys and trinkets for all the youngsters will be among the door prizes to be given at Roy Lane's new shoe store scheduled tentatively to open in the middle of the month.

"It appears that the contractor will have Wigton's new spot ready in time to meet our schedule," Lane said. "Unless some unexpected holdup occurs, we'll go into their present location as they move into their new building early in the mid-month week."

Should the opening be on Wednesday the fifteenth, as presently planned, tickets will be given to all who visit the store with the drawing scheduled for Saturday.

It will not be necessary for contestants to be present. Winners names will be posted in the store window for three days following the drawing. Any prizes not claimed by then will go to a redrawn name.

Ray Purtee who was last week named manager of the new enterprise by Lane, will supervise the drawing.

The new store will carry such nationally famous name brands as Grace Walker's ladies shoes, Red Goose shoes for kiddies, John C. Roberts, men's shoes and U. S. Rubber footwear.

S & H Green Stamps will be dispersed at both Lane stores.

All citizens are invited to attend.

Kiwanis Kid's Day Big Success

More than 2,000 kids whooped and hollered, paraded and exhibited their talents Saturday in the interest of National Kid's Day, an annual Kiwanis promotion.

"It was an unqualified success," reported Channing Mason, Grove Kiwanis president. "Formerly we sent the kids to a larger community but the turnout Saturday proved that enough grownups will work to guarantee a success of this project every year in the future."

Tom Warburton, vice principal of Helix High School, who correlated the schedules and correlated the youngsters, was cited by Mason as being one of the Kiwanians who did an outstanding job. Every Grove Kiwanian, however, had an important part in the affair.

The parade started about noon and wended east on Broadway ending at the Junior High School where a talent show was held. A hobby show and the football game which Helix junior varsity won 14-6.

The following kids won prizes: Parade Winners — Lani Berg, Bryan Von Gund and Ruth Anne Dille.

Talent Show Winners — Patty Corle, Ellis Fields, Peggy Moore, Mary Anne Atkins and Barbara Adams.

Hobby Show Winners — Ronald Foss, Oliver Hodapp, Nancy and Marilyn Sima and Antonio Kallis.

Leadership training classes for Girl Scout work will be held at the La Mesa Youth Center October 14, 16, 21, 23 and 28 from 9:30 to 11:30.

Initial Orientation class is scheduled for October 10 from 9:30 to 11:30.

Newspaper Week Noted By Grove Kiwanis

The Kiwanis Club of Lemon Grove will honor the newspapers of this community at their weekly meeting, Wednesday, in observance of National Newspaper Week, Club President Channing Mason announced.

In its salute to the working press the club will honor Max Goodwin, publisher of the Lemon Grove Review. The local Kiwanis club is particularly proud of the fact that it was their resolution condemning restriction of the freedom of the press that was adopted at the 1952 Kiwanis International Convention.

More than 3,500 Kiwanis clubs throughout the United States, Canada, Alaska, and Hawaii, will conduct similar programs designed primarily to draw public attention to the importance of maintaining freedom of the press.

Kiwanis International has participated in the observance of National Newspaper Week almost from its inception 13 years ago, Club President Mason said.

Walter J. L. Ray, president of Kiwanis International, advised the local club that this year's observance of National Newspaper Week is of special interest to the current Kiwanis administration. He wrote:

"Because Kiwanis International adopted a resolution as its 1952 convention which criticized the suppression of non-restricted information in some government circles and demanded the right of information be continued as a fundamental right of all the people, we welcome National Newspaper Week. We hope this observance will hasten our pursuit of this objective."

This Is Newspaper Week - Free Press People's Right

The right of American people to have free and unrestricted information is the 1952 theme of National Newspaper Week to be observed throughout the nation this week.

"Your Right To Know - A Constitutional Guarantee" is the phrase selected which will be stressed in a series of events highlighting all aspects of the newspaper industry to be celebrated by newspaper people across the country.

In California, special tribute during the week will be made to John B. Long, the founder of National Newspaper Week. Long currently is general manager of the California Newspaper Publishers Association.

Observance of a free press in this year's celebration stems from the following statement:

"It is extremely important for the American people to realize that freedom of the press is a principle placed in the Constitution for their benefit, rather than for the benefit of the newspaper publishers."

The statement was made this year by Robert A. Vogeler, American business executive, held prisoner of the Reds in Hungary for 17 months.

Long, in his present post 25 years representing both metropolitan dailies and small weeklies, is credited as one of the industry's most ardent foes of persons or policies "which threaten to gag the press."

An alumnus of Denison University in Granville, Ohio, Long holds a special citation for "outstanding achievements and services reflecting honor upon the university."

He is credited with helping organize the National Advisory Council, the National Editorial Association, the California Newspaper Foundation, the CNPA Industrial Relations Bureau, the Pacific Coast Division of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, Bureau of Advertising, the Pacific Coast Mechanical Conference, the Editors' Conference of CNPA held each year at Stanford University and the American Institute of Journalists, which is the Los Angeles Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity.

White House Flag Goes to Lemon Grove Masons

More than 100 Lemon Grove Masons took part in a Sunday breakfast at the La Mesa Masonic Temple this week.

The affair was presided over by Tom Parsons, president of the Lemon Grove group. M. C. was Bill Rife.

Spencer Bunch, historian, reviewed the progress of the club and Judge Luther Hussey, prominent Lemon Grove attorney presented a flag on behalf of Frank Gigliotti who is head of the Regular Veterans of the U. S.

The flag was flown over the U. S. capital in Washington expressly for the Grove Masonic group. Gigliotti also obtained a piece of wood from the White House, the last available for the purpose, from which to make a gavel for the club. This gavel will later have a silver plate with the presidential seal. The latter to be a gift from President Truman.

Mr. Brogan conducted a panel game, "What's My Occupation?" at which administrators and teachers, through questioning, discovered the occupations of various guests. Miss Mary Frances Noel, Monterey Heights teacher, was general chairman for the dinner.

Inside Goodwin

by Max Goodwin

"In Washington, I have learned one often becomes surrounded by a wall of dead air. I left Washington to see whether people like price controls—and whether they feel the current act has been improperly administered."

Thus spoke Tighe Woods, new head of the Office of Price Stabilization, on arrival recently in Fresno-Fresno being one of three "guinea pig" cities of the Nation selected in which to test out and get reactions to the latest in the interminable series of price control experiments.

When he met with groups directly affected by controls—chiefly grocers and housewives—Mr. Woods found the air fresh and blowing hard! Interest in the controls issue was lively, vigorous, and for the most part angrily opposed to the program.

Grocers demanded to know why they should be obliged to continue the expensive and exasperating task of control book-keeping and attendant details—when controls have failed to work in the past. One after another, housewives rose to ask Mr. Woods why inflation in living costs has run on just the same through life years—irrespective of whether controls were rigid, flexible or in abeyance.

The harassed official didn't have the answers. He did make the observation that if he finds that people everywhere are against controls, he will report that to Congress and recommend doing away with them.

That sounds promising—yet beleaguered businessmen and consumers are not likely to indulge in vain expectations. Whatever his own conclusions, once he gets back to Washington Mr. Woods will again be surrounded by that wall of dead air. The real hope of relief from the controls lies in blowing away the dead air with a storm of public resentment.

ACROSS the DESK

THE DEMAND for a "change" is strong. It is Eisenhower's task to prove that this means a Republican victory. On the other hand Stevenson will urge that he will give a complete change and the administration will remain democratic. He also has to determine how much aid he can afford to accept from the president and his personal followers. —The Gallen River Gazette, Three Oaks, Mich.

Not only do we wish to see the electoral college abolished and the President elected by popular vote, but we would also like to see a strong Republican party established in North Carolina. This wish is activated not so much by the wish that our state might receive more consideration from the nation in political contests by virtue of being a pivotal state, as it is the desire that we may get the Republicans out of the Democratic party in North Carolina. —The Warren Record, Warren, N.C.

When a man buys a home or a bit of property, he is casting a vote which is backed by his honor and fortune. He elects to become a stockholder in his community. He is expressing his faith in the future. He believes that our Constitution will validate his decision and secure him in the possession of what he labors and saves to acquire. His choice is made possible by the free market. It can all be cancelled out, however, if his political vote is not strong enough to maintain the free market without which personal choice is impossible. —The Free Press, South Charleston, W. Va.

There was once a pair of so-called snag-proof, yellow boots that were the meaneast outfit of footgear that any boy tried to get on—or off. Made of a heavy tough rubberized fabric, these boots were designed with a certain construction at the ankles that was to help in keeping them from pulling off the wearer's feet as he waded mud. Whoever it was that invented these boots succeeded admirably in treating something that would not pull off in the mud. If getting into them was something of a chore, getting out of them was a minor operation. It was finally discovered that a fork in a small cherry tree was just right to serve as a boot jack. So the urchin could divest himself of the foot gear by lying on his back, wedging his foot in the fork of the tree, placing the other foot against the tree and pushing for all he was worth. —Morning Sun (Iowa) News-Herald.

This issue of the Union probably marks my exit from the publishing business after an active life of seventy-one years, forty-two of them as a newspaper publisher. We began our active life at ten years of age, swinging a lash whip over the backs of huge ugly oxen recently released from the freight wagon trains of the Dakotas when the railroads came through. They were the very essence of bovine depravity and the only language they understood was profanity of the most violent kind. Have been going at one thing or another ever since, and it may be high time to retire. —Arthur Towne in The Osage (Mich.) Union.

How to Control People

ONE SUNDAY AFTERNOON Roy L. Gladwell, Montreal, Canada, had a friend call with his cocker spaniel pup. As was to be expected, the children made a fuss over the dog and everything went smoothly—for a while.

It developed that the dog's master fancied himself as a dog trainer, and was anxious to demonstrate how quickly his puppy had mastered the trick of retrieving a thrown ball. As it happened he had just the right type of "bouncy" ball in his pocket!

With appropriate fanfare the ball was tossed the length of the living room by the guest.

Nothing happened.

Then Robert Gladwell, aged five, went after the ball, picked it up and held on to it. He had no intention of retrieving it!

"Throw the ball for the puppy, Robert," said his mother.

"No!"

"Give the ball to Mr. Bardeau," ventured Roy.

"No!"

This caused an embarrassing predicament with which most parents are familiar.

Then occurred for Roy Gladwell an inspiration.

"Robert," would you like to see the puppy run after the ball?"

"Yes!" Robert beamed all over his baby face.

"Then throw the ball."

The ball came bounding down the room.

So Roy was happy, Robert was happy, the dog's master was happy, and the puppy was happy!

For the first time in his life, says Roy, he had succeeded in persuading somebody, admittedly only a child—but a very stubborn one—to do something he wanted done, by arousing in that person an eager want.

ROMANTIC COWBOY

By Travis Johnson

THE WEEK that Shirley Mason spent at Ruth Hastings' "Dude" ranch in northern Montana, was like a chapter from a fairy story. Secretly, Shirley hoped that she would meet one of those gallant story book cowboys.

She thought for certain she had found her dashing hero when Ruth introduced her to Lon Dexter, her father's foreman.

"If," Ruth told Shirley, gaily, "you have designs on Lon, I'd advise discontinuing your campaign at once. Every girl I've ever had out here has fallen for him. But Lon is a woman hater."

"Lon has only one passion," Ruth confided. "You'll never guess what it is." She paused, beaming. "Treasure! He loves to go treasure hunting."

"There's a legend here which concerns a band of outlaws. They are supposed to have ridden their last after holding up a mail train."

"How exciting!" Shirley cried. "Let's organize a treasure hunt. 'We always do when we have guests. We have one planned for tomorrow. Lon and some of the boys will go with us."

Ruth's treasure hunt began early next morning. The small cavalcade, consisting of Shirley, Ruth, her sister, Grace, Lon Dexter and two other cowboys, left shortly after sunup.

Shirley made it a point to avoid Lon Dexter. At noon when they stopped for lunch she ignored him entirely.

Shortly after noon they entered the hills. Travel became more difficult as Shirley's weariness and her resolution not to complain that brought about the catastrophe. Her weary brain failed to register a sharp pitch in the trail ahead; Unprepared, she fell when her mount plunged downward.

When Shirley opened her eyes dusk had fallen. She was lying on a comfortable bed of boughs.

Ruth was talking to Lon Dexter a few feet away. "I should think you would have known better than to push on like that."

Ruth's face was distressed. "Oh, Shirley, I'm so sorry. Lon—we should have known better. You've sprained an ankle, but it will mend in no time."

"I'm hungry as a bear, Ruth."

"Of course. You poor kid." Ruth moved away toward the fire, and out of the corner of her eye Shirley saw Lon Dexter watching her.

"I wanted to say, miss, how sorry I am," he paused, as if embarrassed. "You see—well, it was my fault. I knew you were tired, but I kept going. Wanted to see if you were like the rest." He hesitated again, then rushed on. "I'm mighty proud to know you, miss. You didn't complain once. Not even when you fell. You're—well, different. I'd shore like to know you better."

Shirley arched her brows. "But can you really spare the time, Mr. Dexter? After all, this treasure hunt seems to occupy most of your time and waking moments."

Lon looked deep into Shirley's eyes. "Miss Shirley," he said, "I reckon that I've done found that treasure I've been looking for all these years."

Shirley smiled. "What treasure?"

"You," he said, "the girl I've been looking for all these years."

Shirley's face flushed. "But you didn't answer my question, Miss. About knowing you better?"

Shirley arched her brows. "But can you really spare the time, Mr. Dexter? After all, this treasure hunt seems to occupy most of your time and waking moments."

WASHINGTON WEEK

by WALTER SHEAD

HERE in the nation's capital, leadership in the two political parties is setting up shop, almost from scratch, in what promises to be the most interesting and the most fateful campaign in recent political history.

While both parties will maintain national headquarters here, the great middle-west battleground will see the working headquarters of Governor Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, set up at Springfield, Ill., and that of Gen. Ike Eisenhower, the GOP nominee, at Chicago.

Two brand new, shiny national chairmen are on the job here—Arthur Summerfield of Michigan for the Republicans and Stephen A. Mitchell of Chicago for the Democrats.

Robert Humphries, who has been doing a bang-up job of handling publicity for the GOP congressional committee during the past two years, has taken over the top publicity job for the Republicans, and Sam Brightman, who has been second man in the Democratic publicity setup here, is handling the top job for the Democrats, at least for the time being.

The issue for the important crop producing states of the mid-west has already been cast—the bid for the farm vote being made on platform planks for agriculture which are directly opposite.

During the war years both parties generally supported a rigid price support program in a bipartisan move to protect the hard-pressed farmer, who was urged to produce to capacity.

Then at the first national conventions after the war years in 1948, both parties came out for the so-called flexible or sliding scale of price supports.

In the 1952 conventions just ended, however, the Democrats reversed their positions of four years ago and went back to the stand taken during the war to "protect the producers of basic agricultural commodities under the terms of a mandatory price support program at not less than 90 percent of parity."

The Democratic plank also advocates extension of supports to storable and perishable crops "which account for three-fourths of all farm income."

The GOP 1952 plank, while not mentioning in so many words the flexible support price clause in its 1952 platform, only goes so far as to favor "a farm program aimed at full parity prices for all farm products in the market place" which is interpreted to mean the same flexible supports.

As a matter of fact there have been two flexible farm price support acts passed, but neither had an opportunity to work. The 80th (Republican congress) passed the Hope-Aiken bill, scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1, 1950. However, both parties were dissatisfied and in 1949, the 81st (Democratic) congress, passed a new flexible support law making the effective date Jan. 1, 1951. However, before final passage, several test votes were taken in the Senate on rigid supports, with a majority of Democrats favorable and with Republicans opposed. There was a lengthy debate and the measure was finally sent back to committee. It was finally passed, however by a bipartisan vote.

But in 1950 Congress amended the price-support law to adjust cotton, peanuts and wheat acreage allotments and to ban price supports for potatoes unless under strict marketing quotas. An attempt to put the flexible price support into effect Jan. 1, 1951, was rejected. Democrats refusing to sign, the vote being 17 for and 59 against. The House then adopted the conference report and the Senate passed it.

Charles Patrick Clark, the Washington lawyer who landed a roundhouse swing on Drew Pearson, stood in danger of a year in jail, plus $500 fine, when convicted of assault last week. And when the judge let him off with a mere $25 fine, it seemed as if open season for drawing a bead on the stormy columnist had been declared.

Certainly Pearson's cutting verbal jabs have incurred the wrath of quite a few people around Washington over the years—including a couple of Presidents—and some of them, surely, would consider $25 a bargain price for hanging on to his chin.

Yet it isn't likely that a mass attack, with the line forming on the right, is in store for the doughy political baiter.

Little Arson Sprinkle, son of Fire Chief Ralph Sprinkle, sat in the Ridem Cowpoke movie the other day with an Ike sucker in his right hand and an Adlai in his left. Just like his daddy—always on the fence. Little Joe McCarthy, from over at Split Pine Ridge, was seen giving lip service to a Red sucker recently.

But the flavors are different: Ike is lemon and Adlai is raspberry, and if you don't like either taste there is no third party. Lawyer Craft Wulker suggests mint julep flavored sucker with a highball stirrer for a stick for the Dixiecrats. But Clem replied that the Dixiecrats have no appetite for licking suckers because they're too busy licking their wounds. The Squire flared up and retorted that's because they don't lick anybody's hands.

The kids, just as partisan, resent the fact that after 15 minutes of melting in the mouth the candidates look alike. Squire Gladwyn Deblaise says that's the nature of the critics after you've removed a bit of the sugar.

Cleaning and Airing Makes Bedding Last, Gives Most Comfort

By ERTTA HALEY

TIRED at the end of a busy day? You'll probably get better rest if you've a comfortable bed, as well as sweet, clean sheets, pillows and blankets to go with it.

With so many cleaning devices available to the modern homemaker to cut corners on the actual cleaning and work of running a house, one which has been discarded, probably, is the airing of bedding right out in sun and air. It's this which gave grandmother's beds that lovely fragrance which was so welcome, as well as so soothing.

No, it isn't enough that sheets and pillow cases are sun and wind dried. It helps if blankets and pillows are taken out for an airing, too!

As a matter of fact, it's a big aid to good housekeeping to air all the bedding frequently just so you don't have to take a chance on moths, mildew and other insects which are likely to get a hold on your bedding if you don't shift it around to sun and air.

There's not much work involved in proper cleaning and airing of bedding. It is a matter of knowing what to do, and then doing it. Budget your time, and you will be amazed at what can be done.

Some of the airing can be done daily or semi-weekly. Open the windows and place the pillows near the windows where they can get sun and air. At the head of poor powers to solve problems that afflict them, they seem, like troubled children, to turn to faith in something finer and stronger than themselves for solace. It doesn't require a particularly religious turn of mind to feel that a new Age of Faith might do more to promote the cause of real and lasting peace than all the strivings of the best-intentioned diplomats in this sword-rattling world.

A good pie is like a good INSURANCE PROGRAM

There is no doubt about it, a good pie is like a good Insurance Program. Many a man thinks that he has to have a lot of dough to start one. He thinks that the agent and the insurance companies have a lot of crust to charge what they do. Nevertheless, the truth of the matter is that you do not have to have a lot of dough; the main thing is to have an expert see that the dough is mixed properly and that you are covered top, bottom and sides—just like a good pie.

LADY LEATHERNECK FASHIONS . . . A new wardrobe for women marines will appear as present stocks are exhausted. New uniforms will have more eye appeal and cost less. In addition to dressy blues, counterpart of the blue made famous by the male United States marines the world over, women marine officers will wear a three-piece formal ensemble in dark blue. The summer and winter uniforms are modeled here.

At least 15,000,000 Americans must be trained in Civil Defense and EVERY American must learn the simple rules of self-protection for survival.

the bed can be spread blankets, quilts and the pad.

Do this after rising. After you've finished breakfast, the bed can be made.

In cold weather, the bedroom with its windows open, can, of course, be closed for this airing, so the remainder of the house can be kept warm.

Make Bed Smoothly With Even Corners

Making a bed properly is more easily done than making one carefully. Smoothness is the secret. Put in the bottom sheet on over mattress plus pad so that the center crease is right in the middle of the bed. "Hospital" corners are a great aid in keeping the sheet on smoothly.

There should be sufficient tuck-in at both bottom and top, but if the sheet is short, tuck in only at the top. Then spread the top sheet, with the wide hem at the top. Leave it high enough so it can be folded over the blanket or quilt.

Cover-All

Tailored to a miniature "grease monkey's" taste in dark blue denim is this cover-all for the young 'un in the family. Satisfactory service is insured because it is made of authorized denim fashioning it for permanent fit. Bright red pockets save small boys' glimpses for future use and slipped front opening reaching to the knee makes this a sturdy and practical garment.

Communion At LM Presbyterian

The La Mesa Union Presbyterian Church, 4126 Hardison Avenue, will join with the churches of all denominations throughout the world in the annual observance of World Wide Communion next Sunday, Oct. 5.

The goal of the observance is to have every Christian of every church in every country in the world partake of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper on that day. To help encourage 100 per cent attendance of its members, this local church conducted an every-member visitation campaign last Sunday afternoon in which 20 teams of visitors called on all the homes of the congregation.

The invitation to Communion is extended also to all Christian people of the community regardless of where their church membership may be, for the United Presbyterian Church does not restrict its communion to its own members only.

SACRAMENTO — Provisional figures released today by the California Highway Patrol show that slightly more than 10 persons a day died in the traffic accident "epidemic" throughout the state last month.

The toll was 320 with the overwhelming majority, 253, killed in accidents occurring in rural areas. Sixty-one of the victims were pedestrians.

At the end of August this year's statewide traffic score stood at 2,187 killed, about 2 per cent more than during the first 8 months of 1951.

In a survey of rural accidents, the Patrol said almost 5,000 persons were injured in August. More than 31,000 have been injured since the first of the year, almost a 10 per cent rise over 1951.

A series of multiple death accidents boosted the August rural death figures, Patrol officials said. There were only 7 more fatal accidents last month than in August 1951, yet 34 more persons were killed.

The Patrol pointed out that all figures were subject to revision since records were not complete and seriously injured victims often die a month or more after the accident they were involved in.

If you never need what you learn in Civil Defense, you lose nothing. But if you never learn what you need, you may lose everything.

Population Figures Point to School Help

Proponents of Proposition 24, the $185,000,000 school construction measure, this week pointed to California population estimates recently released by the State Department of Finance as more proof than ever of the urgency of the school building crisis.

Donald Beach Kirby, executive committees chairman of the Committee To Relieve Overcrowded Classrooms, said, "When Governor Warren says even the optimists sometimes lag in estimating California's growth, he is certainly thinking of more and more children knocking at our schools for admittance."

"Proposition 24 is scaled to house 440,000 school children — nearly half a million — which a Federal survey indicated are overcrowded or are in out-of-date facilities right now. On top of that, the State Department of Finance tells us to expect a 273,000 gain in school enrollment in the next two years. Anyone can see from this how important it is to vote 'Yes' on 24 and see that our kids get a decent break in education."

State Department of Finance figures foresee a continued increase in school enrollment for some time. This coming school year there will be over 100,000 more elementary pupils and 23,000 more high school students enrolled in California schools than last year. For 1953-1954, the increases will be even greater — an estimated 120,000 for elementary grades and 30,000 for the high school level.

America needs 600,000 new classrooms, it was reported at a national school-planning conference held at Stanford University recently if her children are to have equal educational opportunities.

Watch That Child!

SACRAMENTO — The child pedestrian — always at the mercy of careless or inattentive drivers — is in even more danger now that school has started, the California Highway Patrol said today.

The Patrol pointed out that 50 per cent of all children through the age of 14 who are killed in traffic accidents throughout California are pedestrians.

In strictly urban areas the record is even worse, for there, 75 per cent of the fatalities in the 0-14 age group are pedestrians. Patrol officials said that while

Science Says We Shouldn't Starve

SCIENCE believes the world can continue to feed its constantly increasing population, possibly due to rise from the current estimate of two and one half billion to as much as four billion by the end of the century.

The assurance was given during the recent International Geographical Congress in Washington. The Society was one of the hosts to the gathering of delegates from more than 50 foreign countries.

Dr. W. H. Sebrell, Jr., director of this country's National Institutes of Health, reported to a symposium on world food supply that chemistry and agricultural technology, advancing side by side, inevitably will keep pace with the numerical growth of the human race.

He said that eradication of malaria — and he called this entirely possible — alone would increase food yields in all parts of the globe by making agricultural workers more productive.

Dr. Theodore Schultz of the University of Chicago's department of economics told the same group that the United States, if called upon could increase its food productivity by 20 per cent in five years, or enough to feed 50 to 100 million more people.

Dr. George Kurijan, University of Madras, said India probably was not as yet making the best use of its farm land. In many instances, he told his scientific audience, tracts are either too large or too small to be efficient, and much land that could raise foodstuffs is presently devoted to commercial crops such as jute.

Other Congress speakers expressed the opinion that the increasing population will have to be fed from land already in use because there are "no longer empty areas worth developing."

Dr. Josue de Castro of the University of Brazil, disagreed in part. He held that the bottomlands of the Amazon River country could be made vastly productive.

Bulen Cites Experience In Bid For Assembly

In an address to the Balboa Republican Women's Club last week, Edwin S. "Ed" Bulen, candidate for State Assembly, 77th District, stressed the importance of having both qualified and experienced State level representation of San Diego County's agricultural areas.

In his talk Mr. Bulen first pointed to the facts that the 77th Assembly District is basically a farming district, and that the majority of people living within its boundaries derive their livelihood either directly or indirectly from agriculture. "In view of these facts," Bulen went on to say, "It is imperative that the representative you send to Sacramento from this district be thoroughly familiar with agricultural problems." "Years have proven," Bulen concluded, "that agricul-

School Enrollment Growth Told PTA

By Mrs. Lyle Stumbough

"Only in a unified district can a continuous program of instruction be carried out from kindergarten through High School," Byron Netzey told the Golden Avenue P. T. A. at its September 23rd meeting.

To the well attended first meeting of the season, Mr. Netzey explained the findings of the Board assigned to analyze the needs of the Lemon Grove District. This Board, sent by the State Board of Education, designated this area as one in which unification would be desirable.

Our Lemon Grove School enrollment has doubled in the past five years and surveys made lately have indicated that it will double again in the next five years. And our neighboring communities are expecting the same increase. Now if these communities unify in the next few years, and we don't, they can be compelled to accept our High School student despite overcrowding or inconvenience. However if we do unify, we would not only receive a High School which would serve as a center of community interest but also a proper Junior High School - one that includes ninth grade. These additions would also provide our local teenagers with school ties closer to home.

Because the financial question is too complicated and involved for further explanation here, Mr. Netzey invited anyone interested to contact him and he would arrange for a full and lucid explanation.

No tax increase is seen as necessary because of the changes that unification would bring about in division of taxes and dispersal of funds.

Proposition 2 Pushed By Dr. McElfresh

Dr. D. D. McElfresh of San Diego was named as chairman of the San Diego City-County Citizens Committee for Yes on Proposition No. 2 at a meeting in the County Schools Service Center last week.

"Our schools face a financial crisis due to inflation and rapid growth," Dr. McElfresh told the citizen group. "This crisis can best be met by allocating State funds instead of placing the added burden on local property owners."
